The Adventure

Your American "Unbelievable Summer Adventure" with Sport USA Camps

The adventure will push you, help you grow as a person, and give you freedom, but what it will do most is change the way you see life. Being a role model in the most empowering environment is a powerful feeling. To know that you can shape an experience for a young adult and motivate them to dream big, what more can life be about?

When you're not at camp, being able to travel and make connections will give you a sense of freedom, and seeing some of the most amazing places the US has to offer will teach you more about culture and help you understand it better.

The adventure is just letting yourself be soaked up by an open mind and a sponge-like life. Allowing yourself to absorb all that is around you and be a radiator of life. Give off energy in the most positive, encouraging, and empathetic way. Go and develop yourself and build a character that is adaptable, independent, responsible, and positive, which will undoubtedly make you much more employable for future employers.

What is Summer camp?

An important American tradition is summer camp! Since its inception more than 125 years ago, the US has hosted over 10,000 summer camps, each one being distinctive. Each year, more than 10 million children attend summer camps, increasing the demand for staff.

It takes a lot of work to run the camps, and that's where YOU come in! To add culture and diversity to their camp while also giving their campers a diverse skill set, camp directors like to hire international staff.

You can work anywhere in America, from the deep south to the remote areas of the Alaskan wilderness, as there are camps in every state.

These camps come in a variety of sizes, housing anything from a few staff members to hundreds of campers!

You can work anywhere in America

To add culture and diversity to their camps - That is where you come in!

As they wait for the start of camp, the summer turns out to be the most eagerly awaited season of the year for American children. In addition to offering a fun, energetic environment, the camp enables children to build life skills, gain independence, and make friends from all over the world. As a camp leader, it is your responsibility to support the growth of the young people you work with by guiding them in the activities you find most fulfilling and inspiring.

CAMP LEADERS JOBS

01

SPECIALIST

If you're really passionate about a particular sport or activity and have a qualification or lots of experience in one of our high-demand areas, you can take on the role of a Specialist Counselor.

As a Specialist, you will focus the majority of your time on one particular activity although you will be expected to get involved in other activities as required.

02

SUPPORT STAFF

The extensive team of Support staff based at every camp are vital for the smooth day to day running of camp life. If you have experience in maintenance, office-work, kitchen-work or housekeeping and would prefer not to be directly involved with the children, then this behind the scenes role at camp is perfect for you.

You don't necessarily need a qualification in your chosen skill, but it does help! We always look for people who are outgoing, enthusiastic, and, of course, passionate about working with children!

EARN POCKET MONEY AND TRAVEL

Support Staff receive more pocket-money and have extra-free time whilst at camp. To be part of the Support Staff team, you need to be a full-time student in continuing education so that travelling to camp acts as your summer break between academic

DO U HAVE WHAT IT TAKES?

Camp leaders have the ability to lead one particular activity area and as a great all-rounder, are able to assist in a range of activities at camp. The focus of their role will be on leading an individual activity though they will also split their time with supervising a group of campers as they go from one activity to another.

A hobby or activity you can do or teach:

Athletics/Sports

Circus

Digital Media

Extreme Sports

Gymnastics

Horse

Riding/Farm

Outdoor Adventure

Performing Arts

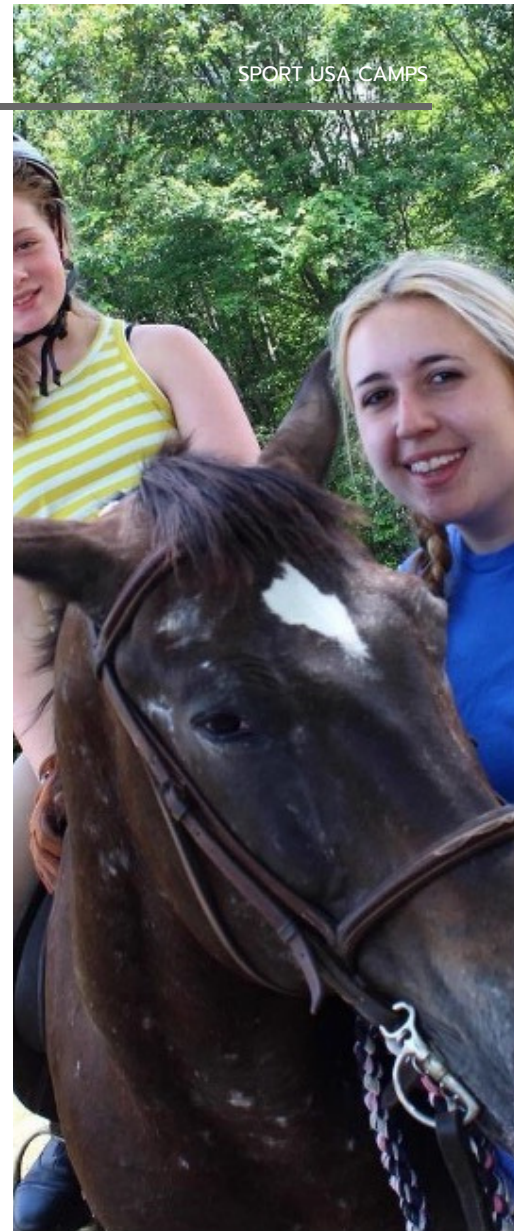

Ropes/Climbing

Target Sports

Water Sports

Cooking

Animals

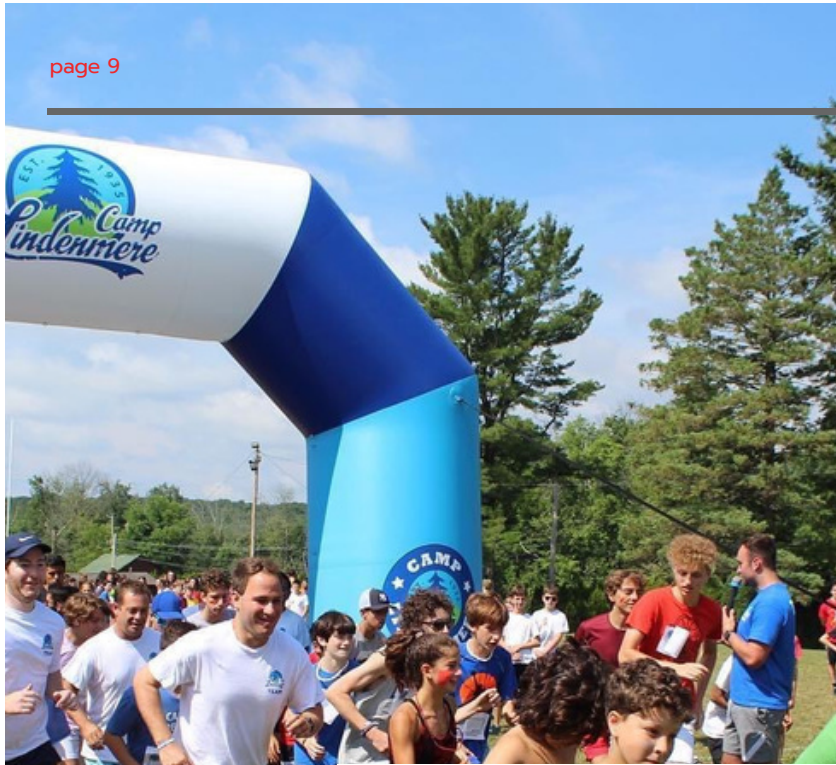

Confidence in your skill

Remember, many campers are young and come to camp with a basic skill level. You don't need to have a certification or be a qualified instructor; You just need to feel confident in your own skill level and abilities.

FAQs

Types of Camp

There are a variety of different camps in the USA, so we've given you a few examples of the different types so that you can get an idea of what each is like.

AGENCY CAMPS

Run by agencies such as the YMCA, 4-H clubs, Campfire Boys & Girls, etc. follow the traditions of the agency with which they are affiliated and are operated by a board of directors rather than an individual owner.

FAMILY CAMPS

An opportunity for the whole family to join in the experience of camp together, family camps will run in the same manner as other residential camps, with the exception that counselors aren't required to live in a bunk with the children as their parents are there to look after them. You'll be responsible for leading activities for both children and adults.

Private / Independent Camps

Privately owned and operated, these camps are often separated into all-boys or all-girls camps, with a few remaining as co-ed camps. Many families have been sending their children to the same private camp for generations, so traditions are strongly rooted in the camper and staff community.

Day Camps

Operated by private owners or an agency, day camps run only daytime sessions, as the name suggests!

Children arrive early in the morning and participate in a full day of activities before returning home to their families at the end of the day.

This means that counselors don't live in a bunk with the kids and may stay with a host family. Day camps are often located closer to towns and cities than residential camps, and campers may come from a variety of socio-economic backgrounds.

Special Needs Camps

Providing an opportunity for those with special needs to experience camp life, these camps can be a real challenge, but are often seen as providing the greatest reward for the staff that work there.

Campers will have a variety of special needs, including (but not limited to): mental and/or physical disabilities, blindness, deafness, learning disabilities, and ADHD/ADD. Campers may range in age from young children to adults.

Faith-Based Camps

Mainly representing Jewish or Christian faiths, this type of camp offers campers an opportunity to attend traditional summer camp while developing and celebrating their religious beliefs at the same time. The level of religious awareness and involvement required from camp staff varies depending on the camp. Some camps put more emphasis on religion and religious studies, while others use religious and moral beliefs in a more subtle way in their daily camp activities.

Underprivileged Camps

Children from less affluent socioeconomic backgrounds are accommodated at this kind of camp. Many campers might be receiving financial aid if their families are unable to pay the registration fees. Underprivileged camps are typically run by a foundation or organization that is funded by grants and charitable donations.
